Sewer Manager Breaks Silence

By TERRY DAVENPORT

David Gehre, manager of the beleaguered North San Mateo County Sanitation District, lashed back Monday at the men he said asked him to resign with promises of a commendation and subsequently blamed him for 25,000 incorrect sewer bills.

Speaking before an unusually large crowd of 40 persons at a regular Board of Directors meeting, Gehre said he originally agreed to the directors' suggestion that he refrain from commenting about the district's overbilling problem but later realized that had been a mistake.

"My silence has been taken as an admission of guilt," Gehre said as he commented publicly on the problem for the first time since he submitted his resignation Nov. 27. His resignation from the $2,500-per-month job takes effect Jan. 31.

Gehre said he was particularly upset by comments by Director William Schumacher, Daly City's mayor, and outside accountant Richard Dwyer printed in newspapers that "more or less have made me a scapegoat."

David Gehre

According to Gehre, the billing errors were made by Resources, Engineering and Management (REM) of South San Francisco, the consulting firm that prepared the sewer bills.

"At no time did I ever tell REM what to do," Gehre told the directors at their regular board meeting.

He explained after the meeting that REM has never been under the manager's control during the four years the company has done consulting work for the district.

Last week Robert Bernicchi of REM said his company increased the sewer charge with Gehre's approval.

Asked if he had, indeed, told newspaper reporters that Gehre was to blame for the overbilling, Schumacher replied that he couldn't recall his exact words but said, "As chairman, you look to your manager to keep your board informed...If something as major as this comes along, you expect to be informed."

Schumacher attributed the overbilling problem to communication breakdowns and said, "I did tell the newspapers consistent with what Mr. Gehre said: he did resign and we did intend to commend him."

He further remarked, "About the only misinformation I gave the newspaper was that he did resign." Schumacher explained he did not point out to reporters that the directors had asked Gehre to resign.

The directors learned Monday that there is no easy way to correct the 25,000 charges that sewer users in Daly City, Colma and unincorporated Colma received in October as part of their property tax bills.

Dwyer, who was hired to determine the extent of the overbilling problem, told the board that not a single one of the 160 sewer bills he had examined was correct.

Of those 160 bills, Dwyer said 131 users were overcharged an average amount of $22.94 and 15 users were undercharged an average of $29.57. He eliminated 14 bills because they applied to buildings with multiple tenants.

The worst news was that Dwyer found no consistent error in the billing. He said sewer users were overcharged anywhere from 7 to 59 percent.

Overall, the test sampling showed that the district had billed users 28 percent too much.

The error was during a transition from including the sewer charge on water bills to adding it to the property tax bill.

Although district directors approved a charge of 59 cents per 100 cubic feet of water used, customers were incorrectly billed 88 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Directors have since criticized Gehre and REM for failing to consult them before increasing the charge in order to generate the estimated $1.5 million necessary to operate the sewer plant in 1979.

Dwyer said there is no equitable way to refund sewer users a set percentage because of the inconsistency of the error.

To recalculate all the bills individually, he figured, would cost about $4 per bill or $100,000 — about one-fourth of the total amount overcharged.

"It's a horrendous, time-consuming job," Dwyer said.

James Morton, attorney for the district, pointed out that the district will have trouble collecting any additional money from persons underbilled because it must deal with those users individually in small claims court.

Director James Fitzgerald said, "Maybe we're doing this backward." He suggested keeping the approximately $400,000 overcharged and changing the ordinance setting the sewer charge to concur with the higher amount that the district erroneously charged.

Then, Fitzgerald added, the district could figure out a way to credit the amount to those overbilled on next year's bills.

Gehre and Dwyer agreed with this plan. Dwyer suggested putting the amount overcharged into a trust fund for the taxpayers.

Pressed for his opinion as to whether such a move would be legal, Morton said the directors could make adjustments in the rate structure at any time and could make any refunds they deemed necessary.

But Morton never directly answered questions about whether or not the board could enact a new sewer rate retroactively.

Board Chairman Schumacher hesitated to go along with the idea, noting that sewer users who were overcharged have the legal right to

Consultant Bernicchi Criticizes TV Report

Robert Bernicchi, consulting engineer to the North San Mateo County Sanitation District, launched a counterattack Monday against the television station that criticized him for allegedly violating conflict-of-interest principles in his business dealings.

Bernicchi, who owns half of Resources, Engineering and Management (REM) of South San Francisco, claimed to have documented more than 30 factual errors in the 30-minute report that KRON-TV aired on Dec. 8 and 16.

He said the report, written by KRON reporter Thayer Walker, is "filled with innuendo, unsubstantiated assertions and misstatements of fact."

In addition to demanding equal time from the television station, Bernicchi said he will demand a retraction. If he is dissatisfied with KRON's answer to those requests, he said he will approach the Federal Communications Commission.

"Without the reaching power of a television station at my disposal, how can I — a private citizen — effectively defend myself?" Bernicchi asked.

The engineer, who has been associated with the North County Sanitation District since 1963, said Monday he is planning legal action against KRON "within the next five to 10 days."

In the report, KRON claimed Bernicchi personally profited while on the public payroll and also benefitted from non-competitive bidding procedures.

The station suggested that Bernicchi tried to buy influence from one Sanitation District director, James Fitzgerald, by purchasing insurance from Fitzgerald's company and that a fire that occurred in REM's offices last July was intentionally set.

To those charges, Bernicchi responded Monday:

* His company had no business dealings with the district from 1963 to 1972, the period during which he served as manager of the district. "After I left the employ of the district, the district board hired me by contract as an outside private consultant to provide consulting engineer services," Bernicchi said.

* Before new federal regulations were instituted in 1975, well over three-quarters of all design contracts for sanitary facilities in California were awarded on the basis of negotiation instead of competitive bidding.

* REM pays over $35,000 in annual insurance premiums for company insurance with an independent agency unrelated to Fitzgerald's firm. The company that owns the building in which REM is located holds a single policy with Fitzgerald's son — who runs Fitzgerald's firm — and the premium on that policy amounts to $500 per year.

* No official determination has been made as to whether the fire that occurred in REM's offices last July was accidential or deliberate. Bernicchi said, "One private fire investigator's report indicated that the fire was accidental" and that no important records were lost.

TIME FLIES, AND SO DOES SANTA

Santa's helpers — Peter Markovich, left, and Al Belotz of Daly City show some of the toys they've collected for Operation Santa Claus. The program, which brightens Christmas for needy families in Daly City, has been trimmed this year and will not give out canned goods or turkeys. But, thanks to donations from community groups and private citizens, Operation Santa Claus will hand out toys and gift certificates to youngsters, as usual.

More Sewer Problems

Angry Resident Wants Bayshore Rates Cut

William Behnken has felt ignored during the squabbling over whether most Daly City and Colma residents should pay a sewer rate of 59 or 88 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Behnken lives in the Bayshore district of Daly City, where residents pay a sewer rate of $1.95 per 100 cubic feet.

But when he complained to directors of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District that his sewer charge of $198.90 was nearly as much as his property taxes this year ($207.78), the directors suggested that he contact his own sanitation district.

Behnken, who is vice president of the Bayshore Residents Association, said Bayshore Sanitation District directors won't listen.

"Why should they? They've got a good thing going. They're making $50 a meeting," he remarked.

The usual explanation for Bayshore's higher sewer rate is that the tiny sanitation district buys its water from San Francisco, which charges $1.13 per 100 cubic feet.

In fact, Robert Bernicchi, who serves as consulting engineer for the district, said, "The $1.95 charge is a deficit charge." Bayshore Sanitary District directors have hinted that the rate will be raised next year.

Behnken pointed out that the Crocker Tract and Southern Hills areas also pump water from San Francisco but, because they belong to the North County Sanitation District, they pay 59 cents per 100 cubic feet. (In a recent billing error, North County Sanitation District customers were charged 88 cents instead.)

"I would like to see Bayshore amalgamated with the North San Mateo County Sanitation District and have the entire system strike an average so that users pay one flat rate. Some would pay a little more, others of us would pay less," Behnken said.

He pointed out that the Local Agency Formation Commission of San Mateo County recommended in 1975 that Bayshore merge with the North County Sanitation District for better efficiency, economy and equalization of rates.

Behnken said, "If this merger goes through, then the district would have the financial strength to build the needed treatment plant, and could charge Brisbane for its use. At present, we are at the mercy of San Francisco and whatever they charge."

He urges Bayshore residents to band together in order to win the advantages that other Daly City residents already have.

Interested residents can reach Behnken at 227 Rio Verde St., Daly City 94014; telephone: 467-5989.

Death Threat To Fitzgerald

A threat against his life was made public by San Mateo County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald.

Fitzgerald distributed copies of a letter addressed to Paul Wischmeyer, president of Television Station KRON in San Francisco, in which he stated that the assassination threat was made Wednesday.

Fitzgerald stated in the letter that he attributed the threat to a Channel 4 program in which questions were raised about Fitzgerald's role as a director of the North County Sanitary District.

"The unfair treatment that I received by your reporter in my opinion was very detrimental to me and would certainly incite someone to make threats," the letter states.

Molly Pratt, Fitzgerald's secretary, said the telephone call was made to the supervisor's office in the Hall of Justice in Redwood City at about 10:15 a.m. Wednesday. A woman's voice with a Spanish accent asked for Fitzgerald, Ms. Pratt related, and, told that he was not in the office, went on to deliver this message:

"I am a taxpayer and I'm angry. My friends are taxpayers and they're angry, too. He's a crook and is using our money for himself. We're going to shoot him... (pause) today."

Ms. Pratt said she asked the woman to identify herself and she hung up.

Pacifica Man Electrocuted

A 36-year-old man died early Tuesday morning from injuries resulting from an electrocution Monday at a Pacifica construction site.

The San Mateo County Coroner's Office identified the man as Melvin Ward of 1596 Leeward Drive, San Jose.

According to Pacifica firemen, Ward was electrocuted at 9:19 a.m. Monday when the cement pump boom he was operating touched a high voltage wire.

The electricity entered through his chest, where the control panel was sitting.

Fireman said he received first aid at the site and was taken to the intensive care unit of Mary's Help Hospital, where he died at 12:19 a.m. today.

He was an employee of C.F.&T. Cement Pumping of Belmont, firemen said. He was working at a home construction site for King Construction Co. at Winwood Place and Gordon Way in Pacific Manor.

Chief Quits Long-time Post

After devoting 6½ years to Daly City's redevelopment goals, Redevelopment Planner Donald Ciucci has submittted his resignation, effective Jan. 31.

Ciucci, who began working for Daly City in June 1972 as a planning assistant for the Redevelopment Agency, explained he is quitting "to fulfill a life-long ambition to become a permanent member of the fire service."

He will begin training for the position of firefighter with the Daly City Fire Department Feb. 1.

Ciucci, a Pacifica resident who has a degree in city planning from Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo, is best known for his consistent efforts to revitalize the Mission Street area of Daly City.

In his letter of resignation to City Manager David Rowe, dated Dec. 12, Ciucci wrote, "If anything can be said regarding Daly City's redevelopment effort, it is that no one individual can be the personification of the agency's program. Redevelopment is a state of mind. Personal involvement and commitment by all parties concerned will be the ultimate rule against which redevelopment's success must be measured."

Rowe commented, "While Ciucci will be an asset to the fire department, his resignation is a most significant loss to the redevelopment agency. Don not only is a very capable professional planner but had also established identity and rapport with the business owners and residents of the Redevelopment Project Area."

Rowe said the city will begin recruiting candidates immediately to fill Ciucci's job.

Most of the tickets for the 7:30 show have been sold, necessitating the earlier performance, according to Lions Club spokesmen. McGill's concert is a full stage presentation of scientific hypnotism featuring hilarious demonstrations, the spokesmen added. Proceeds go to support the Sky Lions' activities.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Daly City got an elevator for Christmas. It's part of a $340,000 federally funded project to make City Hall more accessible to the handicapped. Other modificatins made were installing parking spaces for the handicapped, modifying restrooms, hooking up speakers outside main entrances and building a wheelchair ramp.

Residents Organize Rent Rollbacks

Advocates of rent relief have opened an office at 2615 Fair Oaks Ave. in Redwood City to coordinate local efforts on a statewide initiative campaign that aims to place a rent rollback measure before the voters.

Noting that many landlords have refused to pass on their tax savings due to Proposition 13, Howard Cahill, coordinator of the local group, said, "Howard Jarvis told us lower taxes means lower rents."

Cahill pointed out that some landlords have increased rents as much as $50 per month.

The Housing Coalition of San Mateo County has endorsed the group.

Further information is available from Cahill at 36 Loma Road., Redwood City 94063.

expect a refund according to the 59 cent per 100 cubic feet rate.

He said the inconsistent method in which customers were billed also prevented the board from refunding the money in an equitable manner.

Robert Eppler of REM disputed Schumacher's statement, remarking that the "apparent inconsistency" was caused by using a formula that took into account the average amount of water each customer used from November 1977 through February 1978. Eppler said some customers used more water and some used less, but all were billed according to the same formula.

Schumacher finally went along with Fitzgerald's suggestion that Dwyer and Morton investigate the various alternatives available and report at the next board meeting on Jan. 8 at 1 p.m.

Inother developments:

EMPLOYEES — Sewer plant employees, asked to attend the meeting in order to quell rumors, complained that directors were lowering morale by making "foolish statements." One employee, Vern Pierson, said the crew has remained loyal to the board but added, "Loyalty is a two-way street." He asked the board to think before commenting publicly.

INSPECTION — At the request of Robert Bernicchi of REM, the board is sending a letter to the state Water Quality Control Board asking the WQCB to speed up inspections of the sewer plant and clear the district of alleged wrongdoing.

DIRECTOR — Although directors were expected to appoint an interim manager for the district during an executive session following the Monday meeting, they emerged from the closed session without naming anyone.

COST — Dwyer said he has spent "at least 80 hours" trying to unravel the overbilling problem for the district. At his rate of $40 per hour, he will bill the district at least $3,200 for that time. Dwyer said REM, county and Daly City officials also are expected to charge the district for time spent on the overbilling problem.

ANNUAL VISITORS

Help Wanted

The following agencies have requested assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County.

THE SUICIDE PREVENTION AND CRISIS CENTER will begin interviews in December for people who plan to attend their next extensive training to be offered evenings and weekends during January and February in Burlingame.

THE FRIENDSHIP CENTERS provide socials and recreation in a casual atmosphere for people who need to re-enter community life. Several centers in the county are operated once a week each and staffed by volunteers only. Interested people with organizational skills are needed on a regular basis. People with recreational, crafts, musical or other skills can volunteer on an occasional basis.

MARY'S HELP HOSPITAL uses volunteers in almost all areas of the Daly City hospital. Choose a shift anyday between 8 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. to meet the needs of departments and volunteers.

THE MILLBRAE RECREATION DEPT. needs assistance in planning and leading trips for teenagers, setting up rooms and maintenance of game room equipment. Volunteers should have some experience in recreation and the ability to work with teens. Hours of need are 6 to 9 p.m.

CHILD CARE AIDES are needed by Friends to Parents in South San Francisco.

For further information about these and other opportunities contact the Volunteer Bureau at the main office in Burlingame at 342-0801. Interviews will be made in Daly City by appointment through the North County number, 992-0957.

A project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County, the Bureau shares in the United Way of the Bay Area and is funded in part by the County of San Mateo.

That I may know Him and the power of His Resurrection—

"Would that all who have not chosen Christ might realize that He has something vastly better to offer them than they are seeking for themselves. Man is doing the greatest injury and injustice to his own soul when he thinks and acts contrary to the will of God. No real joy can be found in the path forbidden by Him who knows what is best and who plans for the good of His creatures. The path of transgression is the path of misery and destruction." — Steps to Christ, page 46.

The Reasons for Dog Seizures

By D. R. BARNETT, DVM

QUESTION: Last summer someone kept throwing a ball against our fence and my eight-year-old miniature male poodle "Jackie" would retrieve it. All of a sudden his body jackknifed and he was unable to stand, he started shaking and his pupils were dilated. We were told that he had had an epileptic fit and nothing could be done. The other night he had another seizure, then two slight ones about 15 minutes apart. I understand there are lots of reasons for these seizures, but I don't think they are epileptic because he doesn't froth at the mouth or lose consciousness. What do you think? W.F.

ANSWER: There are many different reasons for seizures, and there are many different varieties. Epileptic seizures can occur in young and old dogs — and even can occur from the time of birth. Seizures vary in intensity. Some are undetectable in which a dog may become disoriented for a few minutes. A full seizure may include lack of coordination, convulsions, frothing at the mouth, vomiting, urination and defecation. Seizures may occur as rarely as twice a year, or as often as several times a day. You should have Jackie examined as there are several excellent medications available that are able to reduce the frequency and intensity of the seizures, or sometimes eliminate them completely.

QUESTION: I have a male and female chameleon. I built them a nice 18-inch by 18-inch house with plenty of plants and sticks to jump around on. They are always green and eat a lot. He sometimes gets a big red neck. She answers him by moving her neck up and down. The house has about a half-inch of sand on the bottom. I would like to know how to encourage them to have babies. Would they lay eggs in the sand? How long would it take them to hatch? Are there any special conditions that we need? And, finally would I have to feed the babies? G.T.

ANSWER: My knowledge of chameleons is limited so I contacted Richard Lacer of the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco for the answer. There are two types of chameleons. Jackson (Old World chameleons), whose young are born alive, and American chameleons, who lay and hatch eggs. We can assume that yours are the American variety and they will lay their eggs in the sand, usually about two eggs. When the eggs hatch the babies should be removed because the male might eat them. The babies should be fed mainly flies and other soft insects including small amounts of meal worms. The plants in your chameleon house should be sprayed with a mist of water and the little ones will drink the dew drops from the plants. Good luck — and keep me informed.

Members of the Beta Sigma chapter of E.S.A. sorority will meet this evening at the Hillhaven Convalescent hospital to help patients wrap Christmas gifts and do some assisting with the decorations in the social room.

Mrs. Olive Rubek, publicity chairperson for the chapter, reports that the plans call for the chapter members to serve refreshments to the patients, following the decorating chores, and lead a sing-a-long of Christmas carols.

Members of the Fifty Plus Club of Pacifica will have a Christmas dinner party at Nick's Rockaway tomorrow evening.

Clinton Steele is going to be the master of ceremonies for the talent show and members of the club have been signing up to perform following the big holiday feast.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hilke is in charge of the reservations and Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan is signing up persons wishing to take part in the talent show.

No gifts will be exchanged at this year's party.

Two senior groups have already held holiday parties. Members of the John Daly Senior Club welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Will Crocker, Claudia Camus, Diana Lipton, and Katherine Bradshaw, and 30 students from Parkway Junior High School along with their principal, Angelo Carmassi, as guests during the party the club sponsored on Thursday of last week.

Longs Drugs, Westlake Food Center and Gemco contributed to the success of the party with donations and the students from Parkway school insured that the entire season would be merrier by distributing bags of goodies to club members. Carmassi reported that 850 members of Parkway School's student association had collected the items in the bags for distribution to members of the senior communities on the northern peninsula.

Helping president Mrs. Edith Richardson with the party were Mrs. Jessie Kosz and Mrs. Marion Sevals.

Scotty Humberto was in charge of the festivities at the Westlake Seniors Club this past week.

Gifts were distributed and huge amounts of very good food were consumed.

Mrs. Dorothy Arnold, president, urged all members to mark their calendars with reminders that the club will be meeting in the Westlake Community Center all the month of January and for the first two weeks in February.

Mrs. Emily Pappas reported on tour plans for 1979 which include trips to Las Vegas, Palm Springs, Catalina Island and the Hearst Castle.

Tickets are now on sale, in the Our Lady of Perpetual Help Rectory, for a new Year's Eve party being sponsored by the parish's Mothers' and Fathers' clubs and the Latin club.

Juan Gomez, Mary Olivera, Merced Juarez and Rose Fode Advise are sharing the chores of chairing the party which will be held in the school hall, 80 Wellington avenue.

Tickets cost $15 per person and the price will include a buffet dinner, dancing to the music of the Carino Combo and drinks.

Mrs. Vera Sans is doing the publicity for the party.

The Westlake Catholic Women and the Westlake Catholic Men are planning their annual New Year's party, "Starlight Serenade" which will be held on New Year's Eve in the Our Lady of Mercy Parish hall.

Tickets, costing $11.50 per person will continue on sale through Dec. 28. Contact Mrs. Harry Kanelopoulos for reservations.

Mrs. James McKee is doing the publicity for this party and Mrs. McKee and Ralph Barsi are sharing the chairperson's duties.

Old Broadmoor Police District Bill Cause for New Commission Concern

Broadmoor's police protection controversy has come back to haunt the tiny unincorporated district.

The Broadmoor Police Commission was distressed when it received word Monday that an attorney is seeking legal authority to make the district pay his $19,298 bill.

That attorney is Wayne McFadden of San Mateo, who argued on behalf of a citizens' group last year to stop previous Broadmoor commissioners from signing a seven-year police service contract with Daly City.

McFadden won the case, which was filed in June 1977 by seven Broadmoor residents, arguing that it was unlawful for the commissioners to commit Broadmoor's future commissions to a seven-year contract.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn determined that the legality of the contract was questionable and, therefore, it was never signed. An appellate court upheld Cohn's ruling.

In the meantime, the two commissioners who favored signing the contract, John McCloskey and Dean Davenport, were replaced with two others: including Randy Wall, one of the litigants in the case.

So, the Broadmoor Police Commission's legal counsel, Deputy District Attorney George Camerlengo, is in the position of having lost a case for the previous commissioners — to the delight of most of the present commissioners.

With Wall abstaining, the commission voted 2-0 Tuesday to direct Camerlengo to resist McFadden's motion that the district pay the bill.

McFadden's motion is scheduled to be in San Mateo County Superior Court in Redwood City on Dec. 22.

Camerlengo said today that he intends to argue that McFadden must collect his fees from his own clients and that, should the court require the commission to pay his fee, that the fee is excessive.

He said he needs more time to prepare the case and intends to ask for a continuance.

Commissioner Wayne Johnson, who opposed the signing of the contract all along, voiced his displeasure that the matter had gone through the courts, upon the advice of Camerlengo.

Wall said Camerlengo's handling of the case was only one instance in which the commission has been unhappy with its county-appointed legal counsel.

The Regent

By GENNY HOM
Commissioner of Outside Publicity

In this week's column I'd like to feature the junior and senior class presidents. The senior president is Daria Wiggins. When I asked Daria about the class of 1979, she said, "The seniors have already started making money for the upcoming activities. We have over $1,600 and should have well over $2,000."

Luanda Wesley is the junior president. Luanda says that her main goal for the class of 1980 is to build up the treasury. The juniors already have had a successful candy sale and are planning many more fund-raisers. Luanda hopes to see more juniors getting involved with the class so the spirit trophy will remain theirs.

In next week's column I'll feature the sophomore and freshman class presidents.

One of the most popular clubs at Serramonte is the Bowling Club, which meets Mondays after school at Westlake Bowl. The advisor of the club is Mr. Tanisawa, a science teacher. The officers of the club are Gloria Bombon, president; Nancy Won, vice president; and Susan Untalan, secretary.

Here's a big welcome from the student body.

For the Christmas season, Serramonte High's Concert Band recently performed in the Westlake Shopping Center and at the Villa Sanatarium. The band played many of the songs played during its winter concert and brought much joy and happiness to many people. I am proud that our band was the bearer of this joy.

The Importance Of Bay Bird Life

By ARVILLE FINACOM

The birds are back! Plump red-breasted robins gorging on pyracantha berries; dark-crested cedar waxwings shouldering aside the larger birds for perching space among them; black-capped chickadees hanging almost upside down pecking seeds from catkins.

In the Bay wetlands, the winter birds settle in. Large wading avocets with upturned bills poke about in mudflats alongside stubby-legged sanderlings that scuttle like clockwork toys before and behind incoming and receding tides. A few migrating stilts, long-beaked black and white fowl with distinctive orange red legs, join year-round resident common egrets in tidal marshes.

Dozens of kinds of ducks, along with preposterous-billed coots, raft on Bay waters, their quiet float broken periodically by the tumultous splash of a California brown pelican diving nearby.

Birds long have been part of the holiday season. Scandinavian customs include Christmas gifts for them, sheaves of grain and suet balls hung from house and barn eaves to help insect catchers and weed seed eaters weather winter.

Legend attributes the robin's red breast to his service to the newborn Christ Cild. The breast of the small completely brown thrush, sent by God to fan with his wings a bed of coals into flame to warm the rude stable, reddened with the heat from the fire and remains rosy as a mark of his diligence.

Customs and legend aside, birds are a necessity in an ecologically sound environment and happily the Bay Area, despite intense urbanization, still offers resting and nesting areas for heavy concentrations of field and shore birds. Increasingly in recent years, shorebirds have profited from state and federal legislation aimed at keeping their habitats viable.

By limiting the amount and kind of fill, by insisting on tidal flat retention and by verifying compliance through on-site inspection, the state-mandated San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission is able to insure Bay edge management that speaks for waterfowl, plants and other wildlife as well as people.

The surge of environmental awareness that led to permanent establishment in 1969 of BCDC was evident also in the federal lobbying efforts of Peninsula groups interested in a more rapid solution to the problem of deteriorating threatening to turn the southern Bay into an unwholesome sink of stagnant sludge.

Their efforts, focused through the ad hoc Citizen Wildlife Refuge Committee, resulted in the signing in 1972 by President Richard M. Nixon of legislation directing the Secretary of the Interior to establish the San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge, roughly 23,000 acres of water and tidelands beginning with shoreline strips south from Foster City on the west and from the Alameda Creek Canal on the east and encompassing the entire Bay breadth south from the Dumbarton crossing.

Refuge headquarters are at the east end of the Dumbarton Bridge access. Eventually the refuge will be developed to include interpretive centers, observation towers, photography blinds, pedestrian, bicycle and boat "trails," as well as some fishing and hunting facilities. Although many of the park's developments still are in the planning stage, there are several locally-operated environmental awareness points in and adjacent to the refuge.

The city of Palo Alto operates the Baylands Nature Interpretive Center east of Bayshore Freeway at the end of Embarcadero Road. Hours are from 2 to 5 p.m. weekdays except Monday and from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 Saturdays and Sundays. Films are shown regularly on weekends, there are workshops, and from November through February scheduled salt marsh walks emphasize bird activity.

For a lucky 15 youngsters of ages 10 to 14 who pre-registered some time ago, the morning after Christmas begins a four-day discovery workshop at the center, introducing them by means of seines, nets, microscopes, binoculars and their naked eyes to the teeming life found in the water, mud and air of the baylands preserve.

Hardy bird watchers and all others feeling up to a three-mile morning walk can join Naturalist John Walton at 8:30 a.m., Dec. 30 for a "Year End Nature Walk," which will include focus not only on wintering birds but also on the plans and small animals that call the Palo Alto marshlands home.

Across the Bay in Coyote Hills Reginal Park, just north of the Dumbarton crossing, a "Last Chance Nature Walk" also occurs Dec. 30 at 10:30 a.m. to noon. Participants will study the ways the marsh community prepares itself for winter. Park naturalists also plan a "Last Chance Bird Walk" from 1 to 3, Dec. 31, New Year's Eve.

In Marin County, two wildlife sanctuaries deserve mention. Although primary activity in the heron rookery at Audubon Canyon Ranch doesn't begin until early spring nesting, the tidelands of Bolinas Lagoon below the ranch and along Highway 1 teem at low tide with hundreds of migrating and resident birds.

Closer still, the National Audubon Society's Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary on Greenwood Beach Road in Tiburon encompasses some 900 acres of shallow Bay and 11 acres of mainland. Harbor seals often are seen sunning on the rocky beach and sightings of over a quarter million birds of some 200 different species are recorded annually.

Regular Sunday morning naturalist-conducted bird walks at 9 a.m. follow a self-guiding trail which skirts the shoreline and doubles in and back around the peninsular promontory enclosed within the refuge. Displays at the Whittell Education Center provide easy reference for bird, plant and small animal identification. The sanctuary is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. A small admission fee is charged non-Audubon Society members.

Some years back Rachel Carson warned in "Silent Spring" of the coming of "strangely silent early mornings that once were filled with birdsong." Contemporary poet Philip Larkin in "Next, Please" speaks with dread of "huge and birdless silence." Whether you watch their whirring wings through window glass or trudge afield to see them in their wilder environment, give thanks this Christmas '78 for birds' feathered treasure. Only in partnership with them shall man inherit the earth.

Perspective

Samuel Chandler

"Dear Sir: Something ought to be done to control those cults."

Before we go further let us define the term.

Cult is a good old word that is changing meaning, as such words as bureaucrat, awful, and gay have done in recent times.

Once the word cult was a verb that meant to worship. As a noun it was used to refer to a system of beliefs and rituals connected with the worship of a deity or a group of deities or spirits. Some writers used it to designate the rituals of a religious body rather than its theology. In time, cult came to mean a religion regarded as unorthodox or spurious. Today at least one dictionary defines the word as "great or excessive devotion or dedication to some person, idea or thing." A cult, in today's usage, means a religious, literary or intellectual fad or fetish.

In their formative years many of today's religious bodies were considered cults. Even Christianity itself was thought to be unorthodox and spurious by the residents of Jerusalem and the rest of the Roman Empire. Certainly the Quakers, Pilgrims, Puritans, Moravians, Menonites and other groups were regarded as cultists, in today's sense of the word. History shows they moved to the new world rather than forsake their "unorthodox" practices. Similarly, many native American religions were regarded as cults in their formative years. The adherents of many forsook their homes rather than face the persecution of neighbors who objected to their rituals and tenets.

Realizing this, Professor Sidney Ahlstrom of Yale University wrote, "America is undeniably the home of many sects and evangelical ferment frequently did stimulate their formation." In the same frame of mind, Dean M. Kelley of the National Council of Churches writes, "Religious movements in their beginnings are probably the most intense form of commitment we are apt to see."

The history of religon then, prompts such observers as Kelley to warn us against attempts to bring legal action against today's cults. In an article in the Dec. 11 issue of U.S. News and World Report he writes, "They (religious movements) are tremendously powerful and therefore when you threaten them, or appear to, you're playing with fire. Nobody knows in what direction it will burn or whether it will fizzle. It's unpredictable."

Kelley believes "it was foolhardy for Rep. Ryan to go probing into the activities of the People's Temple. It's just very dangerous," he writes.

Kelley's article is part of a debate between himself and Richard Delgado, who is a visiting professor of law at UCLA. Delgado writes that legal intervention with cults is warranted when "any organization poses demonstrable threats to an individual's physical or psychological well-being or to the family as an institution. . ."

Le Pacini

Archie Reese, the 49ers' rookie defensive end and one of their few bright spots this season, keeps walking on . . . and on . . . and on . . . but never out.

He walked on as a starter in the early-season Redskins game replacing injured All-Pro Cleveland Elam and walked off the field as a man who has, as they say in the cliches, come into his own. He had played his most minutes as a pro, and his best game, and had proven to the coaching staff as well as to himself that he belongs; a fact that was just a theorem in July, when Reese was listed on the 49er depth chart as a third string defensive tackle.

That nominal listing didn't discourage Archie, though.

"I knew I was at the bottom and had to work my way up."

It takes a lot of courage for a rookie to walk into a camp where the most experience, depth and talent on the team is playing at the only positions for which that rookie is qualified. Just looking at Cedric Hardman and Cleveland Elam and Jimmy Webb and Ed Galigher, and other such vets as Tony Cline and Bill Cooke, would have been enough to send many rookies packing off to join the Army, which is almost what Reese did even before he got to the pros, and before cooler heads stepped in. But Archie stuck around, because he had been walking into tough situations throughout his football career.

As the star two-way tackle, punter and placekicker for little Maywood High School in Mayesville, S.C., in a school district without a particularly strong or well-known football conference, Archie never noticed too many scouts coming around, from either major or small colleges. That bothered him because he wanted to get a college degree and then, "If I was lucky enough, play pro football."

He did have a second cousin, Willie Anderson, playing for Clemson, and Archie went to watch him every weekend Clemson played at home. During those visits, the big kid got to meet the Clemson coaching staff through his cousin, and found that "The people there, the coaching staff, the whole atmosphere, were nice."

The coaching staff liked Archie, too, thought he was a nice kid, but they didn't like him well enough to offer him a scholarship when he was graduated from Maywood.

Discouraged and not wanting to be a burden on his mother, Archie made the reluctant decision to go into the armed services because "I wanted, in some way, to be my own man, not hang around and bother anybody."

But Archie's mother was determined that he get a college education, and his cousin Willie, then a junior, was determined that Archie become his teammate the next season, and certain that the kid could cut it as a walk-on. So Archie's mother and Willie and the rest of the family ganged up on him and convinced him that he should give college a try.

"So," reflects Archie, "I decided that I wanted to walk on, that Clemson was the place I wanted to walk on to, and I just went in and asked the coach to give me a fair chance and he gave me a chance and he gave it to me, and I eventually made it."

This isn't a Cinderella story. Archie didn't walk into the Clemson spring practices and become the sensation of the camp. He labored for two years as a backup in the unnatural positions of offensive guard and tackle, and didn't start until the last four games of his junior year, finally in his old position as defensive tackle.

From then on, he was Clemson's star lineman. He never missed starting another game, and in 1977, his senior year, he was in on 81 tackles (81 first hits and 26 assists), including 16 tackles for losses, a caused fumble, and three broken-up pass attempts.

That great season and Archie's hard 263 pounds spread over a 6-3 frame that could negotiate the 40 in 4.9 was enough to make him the 49ers' fifth round draft choice, a pick usually reserved for those nebulous talents known as "potentials," and which, as Archie points out, in pro ball and especially when you're going up against Hardmans and Elams, is almost like being a walk-on.

To make matters worse, at least temporarily, Archie was switched immediately to the outside, a move which he now feels was good for his career and hopes will be permanent.

"I actually feel more comfortable now, playing the outside," he says enthusiastically. "I like defensive end better than I like tackle."

Archie, obviously, is enjoying pro football immensely, even though he is a rookie who must take the usual ribbing and who may eventually end up on the bench again, when Elam presumably returns healthy next year.

"All that hassling of rookies is strictly for laughs," reminds Archie with a chuckle. "And besides, I was willing to put up with it this year because I'll get revenge on next year's rookies.

"Actually, the veterans on this team are great. There was none of that rivalry stuff. Vets like Elam really helped us, picked us up when something went wrong. You know, patted us on the back when we messed up and told us, 'Okay, that play's over, forget about it and do it right next time.' "

Unlike many rookies, Reese didn't make the mistake of putting on extra weight during the off-season after he was drafted, because he had heard that, in the pros, unlike college, quickness and speed on the line mean more than heft. He was asked by the 49er coaching staff to come in at 260 (his current weight, even though he's listed in the press book at 263), and he appeared in camp at 258, and felt great. Actually, my best playing weight seems to be 255, or maybe even lower, but I just can't keep it down that low.

"OKAY, FELLOWS, I'VE HAD IT"

Dad Erdie Manilla, center, cries "Uncle!" as sons Edgar, left, and Eric pin him to the floor with judo holds. Edgar, 10, is International Karate champion, junior division, and Eric is a green belt karate artist. Dad, a United Airlines mechanic at San Francisco International Airport, holds a coveted black belt in karate and is a champion in his own right. The Manilla family lives in Daly City

Karate Champion No 72-Pound Weakling

Edgar Manilla, 10-year-old son of United Airlines mechanic Erdie Manilla, is called a lot of names by his school chums, but "72-pound weakling" is not one of them.

A sixth-grader at Colma Elementary School near United's airport maintenance facility, where his dad works, Edgar — not quite four feet tall — is a karate champion who can easily split a two-inch wood plank with his bare hand.

Last August, the youngster vied with a large field of 8-to 13-year old contenders in the Third International Karate Championship in Long Beach, and walked off with the junior division championship. In the same month, he grabbed the Pacific national championship for his weight class.

Edgar is one of three sons in the Manilla household in Daly City, where "like father, like son" is an axiom thrice noted.

Dad is a black belt karate champion who now spends most of his off-job hours teaching this martial art, or refereeing karate competitions. He taught his sons — Edgar, 13-year-old Earl, and 9-year-old Eric — the martial art of karate, but it is in Edgar that he holds his highest hopes. "The lad has been accumulating a roomful of trophies," says Manilla proudly.

Earl, the oldest, used to be into karate a lot, but he hurt himself in a competition, and has now gone into judo and boxing. Eric, the youngest, is just getting his feel of karate, but he already has his green belt, the third level in the ascending order of classifications given karate practitioners. (The other steps — designated as "belts" and rated in ascending order — are white, yellow, blue, purple, three degrees of brown, and eight degrees of black.)

"Karate," says Manilla, "is not a test of strength. Training can start as early as six years old, or even five, if the child's build permits."

The airline mechanic says timing, coordination and concentration are prime requisites for karate.

"It takes a lot of guts, work, time and discipline to get anywhere in this field," he says. "Surprisingly," Manilla adds, "Edgar's grades in school began to improve as soon as he got deeper into karate. I would relate this to his development of mental and muscular discipline."

Edgar, who holds the purple belt — just one color away from the black rating — began training when he was five. He learned to move his body, particularly arms and legs, in classic techniques before he could attempt to split a board.

His roomful of trophies are a testimonial to the young man's dedication and success in this intriguing field. He has some ways to go yet before he can pick up his eighth degree in black belt.

Hard Work Pays Off for Serra

By JOHN MURPHY

Serra High's cheering section burst into applause Saturday night when St. Ignatius scored its first basket in the title game of the El Camino Invitational Basketball Tournament.

This strange reaction on the part of the Padre rooters was not the result of a sudden shift of allegiance. Nor was it a simple show of good sportsmanship.

As one might guess, the Serrans were applauding derisively. Serra, you see, led 21-0 before St. Ignatius managed to score a basket with 2:25 left in the first half.

Thirteen-plus minutes is a long time to hold a prep basketball team scoreless. But people who are familiar with the way Serra plays the game, shouldn't be all that shocked by the Pads defensive show.

Actually, St. Ignatius recovered nicely from that embarrassing first half. The Wildcats loosened up a little bit on offense and closed the gap to 26-19 at one point during the third period. But Serra still prevailed, 40-29.

Defense, of course, has been a trademark of Pat McGlennon-coached Serra teams. The Padres spend a great deal of practice time on conditioning and defensive skills. And the hard work apparently is paying off.

"I was very pleased with our half court defense. Our defense — not pressuring in the back court, not crossing, not switching, not really mad-dogging on the ball — but just anticipation, playing the screens well, beating the guy to the spot, taking the baseline away, etc., was very effective."

The game's only suspense came late in the third quarter when SI pulled to within seven points of the lead. But free throws by Rich McGlennon and Dan O'Leary, and a field goal by tourney MVP Jim Bruno, lifted the Padres out of danger.

Selecting the MVP was probably not an easy task. After all, Bruno totaled only 33 points in three tourney games.

But the vastly-improved 6-1 senior forward was a good choice. Bruno was a consistent scoring threat for Serra throughout the tourney and, like all the Padres, he played excellent defense.

"I was very happy to see Jim Bruno get the MVP," said Pat McGlennon. "I was afraid that people might have forgotten what Jim did for us against Westmoor."

Serra dumped Westmoor 57-41 in the tourney opener on Wednesday night and it was Bruno's 13 first quarter points which sparked the Padre attack.

Joining Bruno on the all-tourney team were teammates McGlennon (a 6-5 center) and guard John Grosey. McGlennon was the only player in double figures in the SI game with 11 points.

Serra and SI will square off again on Jan. 3 at Serra in the West Catholic Athletic League opener for both teams. It's difficult to assess how much of an effect the Padres' tourney victory will have on the league opener.

McGlennon hinted that both he and SI coach Bob Drucker were not showing each other everything (in terms of set plays, options off their offenses, etc.).

Still, it was an impressive win for the Padres and should serve as a confidence-builder with the WCAL opener approaching.

In other tourney contests Saturday, Mills held off Capuchino 68-61 for third place, Westmoor nabbed consolation honors with a 59-52 win over South San Francisco, and Crestmoor took home seventh place by defeating El Camino, 62-42.

Mills got good scoring from senior forward Dan Burri and junior guard Dave Delbon as the Vikings rebounded from a 20-10 first quarter deficit to beat a determined Cap squad.

Delbon accounted for 20 points and Burri added 15 more; both were selected to the all-tourney team. Greg Jones and Jim Ryan contributed 10 apiece for the Vikes.

Dave Olson, Cap's fine-shooting 6-1 center, had a career-high 26 points and was also picked to the 10 man all-tourney team.

Westmoor, somewhat of a disappointment in the tourney, had to struggle against South City before putting the Warriors away with a 21-11 fourth period.

Guard Derrick Johnson, a 6-0 junior transfer from San Francisco's Wilson High, paced the Rams with 25 points.

Crestmoor got balanced scoring as it snapped a five-game losing streak with an easy win over El Camino. The Falcons steadily increased their lead over Camino throughout the contest, outscoring them in every quarter.

All-Tourney selection Mark Alger was held to eight points but forwards Todd Boullet and Derrick Horton added 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Jeff Beats Menlo

By DAN BERTELLOTTI

Jefferson High's basketball team did a great job of sandbagging the first two nights of the Live Oak Lions Club Tournament at Sequoia.

The Indians struggled past Menlo School 44-40 Thursday night and Menlo finished eighth. Then the Tribe was lucky not to lose to Woodside, finally rallying to win 47-45 in overtime.

But in the championship game Saturday night against unbeaten Menlo-Atherton, Jefferson was cooking on all burners, blitzing M-A 69-49.

It was an awesome performance. Behind the play of 6-2 junior forward Ernest Dupree, Jeff turned a 7-5 lead into a 19-7 advantage at the end of the first period.

The Bears spent the rest of the game trying to make up tha difference, but could never get closer than 10.

The Indian

By LILY DUMLAO

Jefferson basketball pre-season games have begun. The frosh-soph team has played four games: Mills, Balboa, McAteer and Galileo. They clobbered McAteer 74-69. Although McAteer had really good moves and held a constant 12-point lead, the Tribe came from behind at the third quarter and maintained the lead to win.

Our varsity team has played only two games. They played against Mills Dec. 2 and beat them. Then they played against Balboa at USF and lost to them. We are anticipating a good season with the help of our great All-America center Darryl Jackson.

Jeff's Annual Christmas rally was Dec. 15. Topping off the four-period minimum day, the rally had all sorts of spirited activities.

After Jeff's traditional Victory was played, Teresa Lopez sang her "Donna Summer's medley" (the song she sang to let her tie in first place at our Amateur Night) with the great pianist Glenn Scurlock as her accompanist.

Then the Varsity Pomp-Pon did their Christmas routine to "Jingle Bell Rock" after which they distributed candy canes to the Student Body.

Daly City Awaiting Decision on CETA

What will Daly City get for its $1,048,937 in federal Comprehensive and Employment Training Act funds?

Tuesday the board approved funding of 41 other CETA proposals amounting to nearly $2 million.

Since county officials have learned to be skeptical of federal allocations until the money is in hand, they have made it a practice to score CETA proposals, then dole out the funds as far as they go.

To stretch the CETA money further, the county staff negotiates with agencies sponsoring proposals. If the staff is successful in trimming the funding of some high-scoring proposals, more low-scoring ones will be funded, too.

CETA funds, which are designed to give the "unemployable" on-the-job experience, are given to two types of proposals: "slots" (proposals for salaried positions that would be added to an existing agency) and "projects" (self-sufficient proposals that aim to complete a new endeavor).

Projects that supervisors approved Tuesday, in order of their scores, are:

• A $15,338 plan to repair classrooms for an adolescent health care program, submitted by Guadalupe Health Center.

• A proposal by Bay Area Regional Planning, Inc., to paint 75 houses in Daly City in six months. Funding was not specified.

• A $162,473 plan to upgrade 150 residential buildings in Daly City, submited by the North Peninsula Neighborhood Service Center, Inc.

• A $37,931 proposal by the Human Services Coordinating Council to come up with recommendations for the county, cities and foundations regarding social service budgeting and programming.

• A $116,946 project submitted by North Peninsula Neighborhood Service Center to provide socio-demographic data on the Filipino community of the North County to ascertain their concerns.

• A $35,667 request by the North Peninsula Neighborhood Service Center to establish a human services system to help citizens avoid run-around in the delivery of all human services.

• A $10,758 plan by Pacifica Community Television, Inc. to create five new areas of community television programming for Pacifica.

• A $31,053 proposal by the International Institute of San Francisco to provide multi-cultural counseling regarding immigration and refugee settlement.

• A $98,598 request by the North Peninsula Neighborhood Service Center to provide video programs of community interest on social services and other topics.

5,000 Year-Old Game

By RICHARD C. MOON

Around the turn of the century an excavation party from England made some remarkable finds in Upper Egypt. Among these was the discovery of the tomb of Ra-Sheps, a functionary of the Egyptian court. On the wall of his tomb appear paintings that date back as far as 2,500 B.C. One of these shows two men kneeling at opposite ends of a game board.

Scholars believe this to be the earliest known illustration of Senat, a track game of strategy and luck popular with the royalty of this early civilization.

The rules of Senat long have been a mystery. Historian and game lovers have speculated for decades about how Senat was played.

Now, according to the Cadaco Game Co., this speculation may be at an end. Peter A. Piccione, a Ph.D. candidate at the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, claims to have deciphered the rules to Senat during an exhaustive study of ancient hieroglyphic documents.

Cadaco has published this game calling it King Tut's Game, since it is nearly certain that the famous Egyptian ruler was familiar with Senat.

King Tut's Game is simple enough to play, but the strategy players may employ and the ever-present element of luck make this game engrossing.

King Tut's Game comes with an authentic Egyptian game board, two special cubes and 10 playing pieces.

It is designed for two players and the object is to be the first player to move his five pieces off the board. The play strategy is to occupy key positions on the board for as long as possible and thereby force the opponent into a dangerous position. Players alternate turns by throwing the cubes and moving their men along the squares.

For those accustomed to traditional dice, the cubes used in this game should prove interesting. In the fashion of cubes used in ancient times, these are six-sided. Two sides are blank, two are marked with the number one, and two with the number two. Therefore, the highest possible roll in King Tut's Game is four. Each player rolls the cubes and strives to be the first to move his men safely around the board while keeping his opponent at bay.

Playing this game provides a strong sense of history and a rather strange feeling knowing that it was played some 5,000 years ago. Both children and adults will enjoy the experience and the challenge of King Tut's Game.

√ during the past 4½ years, a ton of newsprint has risen from $213.50 to $320.00, an increase of 50%. On February 1, 1979, it will be increased another $25.00 which will place it 62% above the June 1, 1974, level.

√ During 1979, wages and salaries will be approximately 50% above the 1974 level.

MANY OTHER EXPENSES HAVE INCREASED SIMILARLY!

Many office Christmas parties and private banquets are keeping LOUIS FRUTSCHI and his L'AUBERGE staff busy this month. In addition to the regular rush of Noel diners, the banquet facility at this fashionable restaurant has been in constant demand ... The BRASS ELEPHANT a new restaurant with a themed decor unique to the Peninsula, will open soon in the GROVESNOR AIRPORT INN, which was formerly the Rodeway Inn. You already know about the seafood and Italian specialties at VINCE'S Seafood and Italian restaurant and FRESH FISH DEPOT. But are you aware of the convenient, almost doorside, parking on either side of the restaurant? It's a merry, friendly atmosphere in which to enjoy top quality, well prepared, professionally served seafood and Italian food favorites ... TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT in Moss Beach will be open on both Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, reports Owner TILLIE SCHOLTZ. Reservations are necessary for both occasions. THE DIET CORNER

By Elise Gendar

Look your best for Christmas and the New Year.

For some pretty changes you can:

Change your hairstyle. If you're dieting a simple coif will make your face appear thinner.

Try a lighter lipstick. You'd be surprised how that trims the face, lightens wrinkles, and generally lifts the landscape.

Pluck out heavy brows. Heavy is as heavy does as heavy looks.

Contour your cheeks with blusher, either cream or powder. For centuries, actresses practiced this simple secret. No reason for you not to practice this great deception on your personal audience.

Lighten the hair around your face just one shade. It shouldn't be noticeably noticeable — just enough that something really attractive is different.

Slim down your nose with a deft and subtly darker foundation down either side. Honest. Accentuate the vertical. That's what you're after.

The simpler, the slimmer for your eyes. Use mascara and an earthy brown or mauve shadow.

All of these changes are for now. It's important to look thin as you become thin. Giving your face a boost for the holiday season guarantees compliments, the food of the soul. A feast for the soul eliminates the need for overeating at the table.

When it comes to feasting, there is a way to do it slimly. This recipe will give you a start.

CRAB MEAT ASPIC

2 packs dietetic lemon gelatin
4 packages instant chicken broth mix
2 cups boiling water
3 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup plain yogurt
1 small onion, grated
1 pound fresh or canned crab meat
1 cup celery, chopped
3 teaspoons dill or parsley, chopped
¼ teaspoon white pepper

Dissolve gelatin and bouillon in boiling water. Add lemon juice, yogurt, and onion. Mix thoroughly. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in crab meat, celery, parsley, and white pepper. Pour into two-quart mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce and garnish with tomato slices.

In your haste to decorate the house and tree for this joyous time, allow 30 minutes a day for yourself. It's fun to face the day with a pretty face. It makes any chores easier. You'll find you smile more, too. And a smile is your thinnest accessory.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Before you know it, Santa will be here. And after all the gifts are opened and the wrapping paper and small pieces of toys and puzzles sprinkled and scattered around the floor, it will be up to you, good cook, to have Christmas dinner on the table for the hungry troops.

I know you have your dinner all planned, but just in case you haven't decided on dessert, how about something different, delicious and colorful?

ICE CREAM BALLS WITH CHERRY SAUCE

4 cups crushed corn flakes
½ cup slivered, blanched almonds
¼ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ quarts vanilla ice cream, divided into 8 large balls
Cherry sauce

First, divide the quart and half of ice cream into eights and shape into balls. (This is cold-handed work, so work quickly.) Place in plastic freezer bag and return to freezer.

Mix the four cups crushed cornflakes and half-cup slivered almonds. Combine the fourth-cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, two tablespoons corn syrup and fourth-teapoon salt in heavy saucepan. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, just until syrup bubbles over entire surface; remove from heat at once. Add the corn flakes and almonds. Stir to coat evenly with syrup, turn out quickly onto large flat area covered with waxed paper. Separate the crunch into small bits of flakes, using two forks. Cool.

Take one ice cream ball at a time from your freezer and roll in crunch. Return it immediately to freezer to harden and repeat until you have coated all the balls. (When I did this I placed the balls on a cookie sheet and when they were good and hard returned to the freezer bags.)

CHERRY SAUCE

1 one-pound, 6-ounce can cherry pie filling
2 tablespoons sugar
' cup cherry or orange liqueur

Combine the cherry pie filling with the two tablespoons sugar in saucepan, heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Transfer to a double boiler and keep warm until ready to serve. Add liqueur just before serving. You may substitute orange juice for liqueur if you wish.

Newest Laguna Salada District Trustee Promises Help

Judy Johnson, a 37-year-old Pacifica homemaker, has beem selected from a field of six applicants to be the new trustee of the Laguna Salada School District.

She has said her priorities are to strive for equalization in school finance, to offer more help for students with learning disabilities and to maintain the variety of programs offered in the district.

Her appointment was made by the four trustees of the district, who interviewed each candidate for 20 minutes and then asked Mrs. Johnson and Paul Anderson back for a second round of questioning.

In the three straw votes taken, the trustees divided their votes evenly between Mrs. Johnson and Anderson, a data processing manager who stressed his concern about the state taking over financial control of the schools.

Trustee Curtiss Landers switched his support from Anderson to Mrs. Johnson on the fourth vote, when he made a motion to appoint her.

Seconding that motion was Trustee Marilyn Wills, who said after the meeting that Mrs. Johnson was her campaign manager when she ran for the board in 1977.

When asked if she felt there was any conflict of interest in her voting for Mrs. Johnson because the two know each other so well, Mrs. Wills said she did not believe there was a conflict.

"This is a small community," she said, adding that she was acquainted with several of the candidates. "You try not to make prejudgments."

The new trustee was selected after the board decided not to hold a special election to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of John Plato, who has taken a job on the East Coast.

This is the second time in recent months the board has selected a trustee. Trustee Fred Jones went through a similar interview process to fill a vacancy on the board this fall.

Eight candidates had originally filed for the seat but two dropped out of the running.

Mrs. Johnson has a degree in psychology and has worked as a library researcher for an encyclopedia company. She currently sits on the district's personnel commission but will have to resign.

Bilingual Teachers Instructed to Learn Proper English, Or Else

Bilingual teachers in the Jefferson Elementary School District must go to school to learn to speak English properly or they won't have jobs next year, the district's board of trustees decided.

The board also decided that the teachers won't be paid for taking the 15-hour course in diction nor receive academic credit for it. Receiving credit for the training would raise the salary schedules of some of those 33 teachers.

Trustee Beverly Forrester remarked, "We're spending money to provide training for them, and I'm hard pressed to give them credit on the salary schedule to improve skills that they should have had when they were hired."

Trustees laid the blame for the problem on colleges that certify bilingual teachers.

The instruction costs $30 per hour and will be paid for with federal funds.

Remedial training in English for bilingual teachers is one of the goals of the district's bilingual master plan, which the board adopted last fall. Fears that pupils would learn to speak English improperly from bilingual teachers prompted the board to take action.

One bilingual teacher, who asked not to be identified, called the board's action "discriminatory" and said she believes the board is confusing foreign accents with the ability to speak English.

Nettie Herbert, who coordinates JESD's bilingual program, tried to persuade the board not to require the course of all teachers, pointing out that some bilingual teachers are native-born Americans who speak perfect English.

The board decided to let Dr. James Kohn of San Francisco State University, who will train the teachers in diction, pronunciation and elocution, to determine which teachers need the training and when they have improved sufficiently.

"It might only take some teachers three or four lessons," Mrs. Forrester remarked.

Mrs. Herbert noted that the bilingual teachers already have many course requirements to fulfill this year.

Mrs. Forrester said, "If they don't want to take this course, they don't have to, but if they want to keep their jobs next year, they'd better take it."

The board also took a "get tough" attitude during a discussion of state test scores.

Ted Pettersen, supervisor of project development and evaluation for the district, told the trustees that the scores — based on tests taken last spring by second, third and sixth graders — showed little fluctuation with scores reported over the previous four years.

The scores are slightly below last year's scores but above the previous year's, he said, adding, "In most areas, we've followed pretty much the state pattern."

Trustee Alvin Schwarzbach asked, "Are you saying education is going to hell or what?... That we're maintaining mediocrity?"

Stressing that the district scored in the median range, compared to other districts in the state, Pettersen explained that being in the middle means half of the state's pupils did better and half did worse.

Schwarzbach said, "I'd rather be on the high end rather than say, 'We didn't win many ball games but we sure came close.'"

Pettersen replied, "We are winning lots of individual ball games."

Following a long discussion on whether the test scores were the fault of teachers or parents, the trustees asked Pettersen to return to a future board meeting with an explanation of how the scores varied from school to school.

In other business:

• Superintendent Peter Hansen informed trustees that the district will be one of 80 across the country to be audited by the federal government "to see if we have spent the money the way they wanted."

• A citizen, Ernest Pezzola, asked the board to require children to pick up litter on campuses. Two principals said litter programs already are in progress at their schools.

• The board accepted the first reading of a policy which requires that all gifts are to be made to the district as a whole rather than to individual schools.

11th Congressional District Continues to Draw Candidates

There may be as many candidates as voters for the 11th Congressional District seat left vacant by the assassination of Rep. Leo J. Ryan.

County Clerk Marvin Church today released the names of 12 persons who have initiated action with his office indicating their desire to run.

And the list is incomplete inasmuch as early favorites, Joe Holsinger and George Corey, have not initiated the early procedures.

Church said that he began distributing petitions-in-lieu of filing forms Dec. 11. The petition process is an alternative method to meet the $575 filing fee requirement.

The deadline for circulation of the petitions is 15 days before the close of the nomination period, which won't be established until Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. sets an election date.

But it would appear, Church said, that the filing deadline for petitions-in-lieu may be as early as Jan. 5 and no later than Jan. 22.

In any event, included among those who have already taken out the papers are some who have not publicly announced their candidacy.

The list, as distributed by Church, shows:

• William Royer, county supervisor, a Republican from Redwood City.

• Gale Dreisbach, former South San Francisco city manager, a Republican from South San Francisco.

• Nicholas Kudrovzeff, electrical engineer, an American Independent from Pacifica.

• Dave Welch, tax manager, a Republican from San Bruno. Welch lost to Ryan in the November general election.

• Charlotte Trainor, homemaker/student, a Democrat from Belmont.

• Donald G. Ralston, high school teacher, a Democrat from San Mateo.

• Charles M. Byrne III, businessman, a Republican from Hillsborough.

• Nancy Jewell Cross, nonpartisan, from Menlo Park.

• Patrick Houlihan, tax accountant, a Republican from South San Francisco.

• Wallace P. Morrison, electronic engineer, a Democrat from Redwood City.

• Roger Canfield, administrator, Republican from Belmont.

• Wilson Branch, social worker, a Peace and Freedom Party member from San Mateo.

Four-Story Kaiser Garage Approved

A use permit to build a four-story parking garage at Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco was granted this week by the city's Planning Commission.

As a condition of approval, Kaiser Hospital must prepare a traffic study of the surrounding area to determine what effect future expansion will have on South San Francisco.

The purpose of the study is to demonstrate that access to the hospital is sufficient to handle future traffic needs.

The garage will have four levels and roof parking and hold 700 cars. Hospital representatives said more parking is needed because two floors of the medical wing have opened.

Temporary off-site parking will be provided during construction.

A SPECIAL LIMITED OFFER FROM THE TIMES

The $3.25 monthly, home-delivery rate to The Times was established on June 1, 1974. Since that time, the costs of producing and delivering a newspaper have increased tremendously.

FOR EXAMPLE:

- ✓ during the past 4½ years, a ton of newsprint has risen from $213.50 to $320.00, an increase of 50%. On February 1, 1979, it will be increased another $25.00 which will place it 62% above the June 1, 1974, level.
- ✓ During 1979, wages and salaries will be approximately 50% above the 1974 level.

MANY OTHER EXPENSES HAVE INCREASED SIMILARLY!

All of the increased expenses have necessitated a subscription rate increase, which was announced on November 30, 1978. The monthly home delivery rate for The Times is now $3.75 per month, still less than 15 cents per issue.

During the month of December, 1978, however, we are extending a Special Annual Home-delivery Offer of $39.00,* a savings of $6.00 for the year.

In order to take advantage of this special offer, simply fill out this coupon and mail it, along with your check for $39.00, to: The Times Circulation Dept., P.O. Box 5400, San Mateo, CA. 94402.

City Council to Set Own Recall Date

Brisbane City Council members are scheduled to set the date of their own recall election Thursday at 6 during a special meeting in City Hall.

City Manager Brad Kerwin told the council that there were sufficient signatures on petitions seeking the recall of all five members and that they must schedule the recall election by Dec. 24.

One of the five councilmen facing recall is Paul Goercke, who resigned verbally from the council last month and finally decided on Monday that he wanted to keep his job.

The city attorney ruled that Goercke's resignation would not take effect unless he put it in writing.

The other four council members are Mayor Jeannine Hodge, Vice Mayor Don Bradshaw and Councilmen Fred Smith and Art Montenegro.

Kerwin said he has been calling Gov. Brown's office in an effort to learn when the state will hold a special election to fill the late Congressman Leo J. Ryan's seat.

"The council doesn't want the taxpayers to have to pay for two special elections," he said, explaining that it would cost Brisbane residents $1,500 for the recall election if it were held at the same time as the other election, but $3,000 if the recall election takes place on a different date.

Kerwin said most people speculate that the election to fill Ryan's seat will be March 6.

Since the Brisbane City Council must set the recall election 80 to 125 days in advance, the council must act quickly in order to schedule it for March 6.

Kerwin said he wishes the governor's office would return his phone calls.

Baptisis Stage Cantata

A cantata, "The Night the Angels Sang," by John W. Peterson, will be presented by the Westlake Community Baptist Church Choir, under the direction of John Paine, minister of music, Dec. 22 and 24. Soloists are Rev. Ed and Naomi Newkirk, and Roberta Beukers. Francis Beukers is the narrator.

The program Friday will begin at 7:30 p.m. Two plays will be presented by the Wednesday night youth classes of the church, "Let's Go to Bethlehem." The teens will present "The Departure." The choir then will conclude with the cantata.

Sunday at 9:45 a.m. the Children's Bible School will present "I Wonder," a departmental program with tableaux. The church choir will present the cantata at 10:50 a.m., followed by a short message from Dr. Grady L. Higgs, pastor of the church.

The public is invited to both services. The church is at Southgate and Elmwood streets, Daly City.

D.C. Library Holiday Moratorium

In keeping with a policy long established, the Daly City public libraries have declared a holiday moratorium on fines. Extending from Dec. 22 to Jan. 6, the moratorium will cover all library loans except those of material furnished through inter-library loans.

In announcing the no-fine period, City Librarian Samuel Chandler, assured patrons that no questions will be asked, and no comments made on the receipt of overdue materials. "The idea," he said, "is to get back books and other items that are, after all, the property of all the people of Daly City."

"Books and other materials," Chandler said, may be returned to any of Daly City's four public libraries — 6351 Mission St.; 275 Southgate Ave.; 2960 Geneva Ave.; and 40 Wembley Drive.

Kesterson In the Navy

Navy Constructionman Jim F. Kesterson, son of Thomas N. and Margaret E. Kesterson, 88 Maywood Ave., Daly City, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. A 1978 graduate of Westmoor High School, he joined the Navy in February.

BART Holiday Fare Cut

Christmas Day fares also will be offered at the same special bonus, from 20 cents minimum in the downtown areas to 75 cents maximum for the longest one-way ride.

In addition to the special fares on Sundays in December and on Christmas day, all BART Express Buses on those days will be free when boarded at BART stations. BART Express buses, which are operated by AC Transit for BART, service outlying communities in the East Bay.

All automatic fare vending machines in BART stations have been modified to accommodate the special Sunday and Christmas day bonus reduced fare. Patrons should pick up the special fare schedules available in all BART stations.
